

Loosening the Ties

by Angie Baker, PhD, OTR/L, CTRS, Director of Occupational Therapy

When I first began treating Lisa, she needed restraints on both hands to keep her from hitting herself or pulling out her hair, a cushioned head band to keep her from banging her head, and a full-time aide to prevent self injurious behaviors from escalating. Lisa has been actively participating in school based occupational therapy twice a week for an hour for 4 months, and she seems like a different child to me now. Lisa can demonstrate diaphragmatic breathing as a self regulation tool. She can move her body using typical movement patterns that previously initiated panic and fear. She can now eat at the dinner table with her family and go for almost a full school day without requesting her "ties" as an external support to keep her body in control. More importantly, she smiles more.

As a school-based occupational therapist (OT) here at Villa, I collaborate with special education teachers, speech therapists, behavior therapists, and parents to help a burgeoning population of children with autism and other developmental disabilities to achieve school success. This team approach has been instrumental in helping Lisa, and many other Villa students, blossom with new found sensory processing, sensory motor, fine motor, gross motor and general independence skills.

Occupational Therapists have been using holistic and alternative treatment approaches to assist children with disabilities for decades. In OT sessions we use fun, functional activities to engage school children in their therapy. Lisa's therapy sessions have primarily focused on sensory integration techniques. During OT, Lisa and I sit on a large bolster swing and perform oral motor and visual motor exercises in the form of games and songs. These types of exercises are important to enable students to use the full range of motion of their eyes, including proficiently visually moving to points from far right to far left, in the top middle and bottom of their visual field, as well as to encourage movement patterns such as diagonals and circles.

Lisa and I also use our swing time to engage in facilitated breathing techniques that she has now nearly mastered. She has been able to independently decrease her anxiety and heart rate by using this tool in class with little prompting. Lisa enjoys upper body exercises that improve her muscle tone, strength,

What a difference a few months makes! I was just re-reading my remarks in the last issue and so much has changed that it's hard to know where to begin! Let me start with the change of my long-planned retirement date from June 2009 to March 31, 2009. In December, I decided to leave earlier to help reduce Villa's expenses with the continuing state budget cuts and because the new senior team is in place and ready to lead. I am so pleased to announce that Kelly White, Villa's long-time COO, will become the next CEO on April 1, 2009. I have every confidence that under Kelly's leadership Villa will come through its current and future challenges successfully.

Let me speak to a few of the challenges ahead. We thought that we knew the worst when the state budget deficit next year was going to be $42 billion and we were going to be cut 3% in our regional center-funded programs in addition to the 10% cut in our employment services program last year. Another 7.1% cut is very possible in September. The state economy continues to deteriorate and is now depending on the federal stimulus money to prevent deeper budget cuts. And, if service providers, like Villa, weren't already anxious enough about the financial situation, for most of March, the regional centers reported that they would run out of money and not pay providers for critical client services in May and June! Finally, at the end of March, the State Department of Developmental Services "found" enough funds to carry providers through May and hopefully most of June 2009.

As you know, regional center-funded services, especially residential small group homes, have been under-funded for many years. Villa has survived and become strong because of prudent management and our great donors and grants support. We have already had to cut our expenses by over $400,000 for this fiscal year and much more will be required next year if all of the cuts go through. Unfortunately, the primary sacrifices affect staff by reducing hours, cutting positions and reducing overall expenses including some benefits.

We are always working on creative avenues for short and long-term funding, but we will be relying, as never before, on our families and other supporters to help us get through this difficult time. We have been involved in advocacy efforts to prevent these catastrophic cuts at many different levels and with other agencies. We will be asking all of you to join us in these important efforts, but it is the families of those most affected by the cuts that the politicians and regional centers will listen to.

I am sorry to have such news in my last "message" to all of you, but I want each and every one of you to know that I appreciate all of the warm support that you have given me. It has been my privilege to be Villa's CEO over the last 12 years, to lead a wonderful "team of excellence", and to work with a great board. I have been privileged to see the growth and development of our special children, adults and seniors over the years. They are, after all, the reason that we are all a part of the very special mission that is Villa Esperanza Services!

Leadership News

WISHING DOTTIE ALL THE BEST

Villa's Board of Directors thanks Dottie Nelson, CEO for 12 exceptional years. With Dottie's leadership Villa has grown from a $3 million organization to a $10 million Center of Excellence offering 9 diverse programs; created a continuum of services for children, adults and seniors with disabilities that covers Autism to Alzheimer's; increased staff from 125 to 250, serving over 1,000 individuals and their families; and become a sophisticated, professional, and systems-based organization providing quality care and services. Thank you Dottie, we wish you all the best on a well-deserved retirement!

WELCOMING KELLY WHITE

ANOTHER FOND FAREWELL

Lastly we announce the retirement of Johnnie Wall, Vice President of Senior Services and Community Relations. Her last day with Villa was December 31st. Her programs included Care Management (CMOC) and Adult Day Programs (ADP) at Westminster Presbyterian Church. Johnnie started Villa's CMOC program in 1999 and added the ADP a year ago. She was also our visible presence in many communities as CMOC covers 42 cities in the San Gabriel, San Fernando and Conejo Valleys. A Farewell Reception was held for Johnnie where families, friends, volunteers and staff said their good-byes. We thank Johnnie for all that she has done for Villa and we will miss her!

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

by Nancy B. Pierson, Parent

Villa Esperanza is “speaking for those who cannot speak for themselves.” I'm sure you will agree that Dottie Nelson, Villa's CEO, makes a moving statement with these words.

With the recent increase in the population of people with autism, Villa's mission of compassionate care for the developmentally disabled has expanded to include the most challenging group in the moderate to severe range. The children's program now is particularly focused on children with this diagnosis, but Villa's adult programs are preparing to serve them as well.

My son, Toby, has autism and has been a Villa student for 14 years. He is now 18 and is in one of the wonderful new high school classrooms. When he started at Villa, Toby was non-verbal with no attention span and a violent, often self-abusive, temper. He had (and still has) no language. With infinite patience and love, the teachers, speech therapists and classroom staff at Villa Esperanza have nurtured him along to become the calm, funny and helpful person he is today. By seemingly endless repetition of simple lessons and exercises Toby has learned to type words and even sentences. Toby has a voice, at last. Thank you, Villa!

ART ONLINE!

Villa student, Tyler Sparks now has his art online! “Sunny” was created during Villa's eight week art therapy program and it has been published on Artsonia, the world's largest student art gallery on the Internet! Anyone can view the school gallery online at: www.artsonia.com/schools/VillaEsperanzaServices1. Check it out.

and endurance but also promote interhemispheric integration of the brain. Trainings with Lisa's teacher, classroom staff, and behavior therapist have ensured that Lisa can participate in these therapeutic activities throughout the day. If you ask Lisa, she will tell you that her favorite things in OT are "breathing" and "backbends."

As an OT, I take pride in seeing the students I work with become more independent, require less equipment and external supports, and further participate in their academic environment. Once students begin to obtain sensory modulation techniques and self care skills they are filled with a sense of pride and self control. They are often able to access their true personality that may have been hidden behind negative behaviors for quite some time. With the services that Villa Esperanza provides, our students can show us their sense of humor, communicate their needs, and, of course, smile more.

We would especially like to thank the Ayrshire and Rose Hills Foundations for providing funding to start Villa's OT Clinic.

Villa's transportation program provides over 700 one-way trips each week.

VILLA GUILD, BETTING ON A WINNER

More than 200 guests joined us for a beautiful day at Santa Anita Race track for Villa Esperanza Guild's 11th Annual "A Day of Thoroughbred Racing" Saturday, February 28. The event raised $67,000 to support Villa's Hjelte-Phillips Speech and Language Center and Adult Residential and Independent Living Programs for individuals with developmental disabilities. Thank you to all our Guild Members and to those who participated!

Advocates Kathryn Trimble and Bob Moore speak out about budget cuts.

the budget. Personal stories were also shared in hopes that funding cuts would not directly impact service providers. Regional Centers receive their funding from DDS which in turn support service providers like Villa.

ADVOCACY

Villa Board member and participant Kathryn Trimble, along with Villa parent, Bob Moore and two of Villa's leadership staff attended the California Disability Services Association Stakeholders Meeting relating to costs in the Department of Developmental Services (DDS) system.

The current California budget requires a cut in funding to DDS. Two forums were held for DDS to hear ideas and suggestions on ways to cut
